She is one of the creators of the unique Hungarian family policy idea and model, and has been leading this field within the government for the past two terms; first as Minister of State and later as a Cabinet

Minister. During her term in office, the notion of family policy, the actual governmental measures and, consequently, the Hungarian demographic trends have undergone a remarkable transformation. Government expenditure on families has risen from 3,5% in 2010 to 6,2% in 2022. Total Fertility Rate has grown from 1,25 to 1,56 during this decade, which is the highest growth in the EU. Compared to 2010, by 2020 the number of marriages has grown by 89%. The number of abortions has fallen by 40.9% over the last decade; the last time there were fewer terminated pregnancies in a year was 1954. From July 2021, for the first time in Hungarian history, Infant Care Allowance surpasses the previous net salary.

She is the editor of the volumes Family Friendly Turn 2010-2018, Family Friendly Decade 2010-2020, and „...What is ours” 50 Writings on the Family. She is the creator of the Stipendium Peregrinum scholarship programme. On her initiative, 2018 was celebrated as the Year of the Family in Hungary. Communication with partner parties of FIDESZ and the formation of a value-based Christian democratic interparty cooperation in Europe and over the world are priorities in her work.
